Ohio Division of Wildlife adds eight species to endangered list

Associated Press - September 16, 2007 9:25 AM ET

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Ohio Division of Wildlife has added eight new species to the endangered species list this month.

Every five years the state surveys species and updates their survival status.

Among the creatures that are threatening to become extinct are a rarely seen damselfly called the river jewelwing and the Allegheny crawfish, found in Ohio's creeks and streams.

The Wildlife Division's John Navarro says the state has had some success protecting endangered animals. In the past ten years, black bears, bald eagles and river otters have rebounded from dangerously low numbers.

But the list can only help so much. Navarro says the biggest problem is development encroaching on endangered animals' habitats.
